Johnny Appleseed

Teach Beside Me

Johnny Appleseed was an apple farmer from the 1800's. His real name was John Chapman.

Johnny Appleseed carried seeds that he collected from cider mills.

He traveled around to many states planting the apple seeds. He made so many friends along the way.

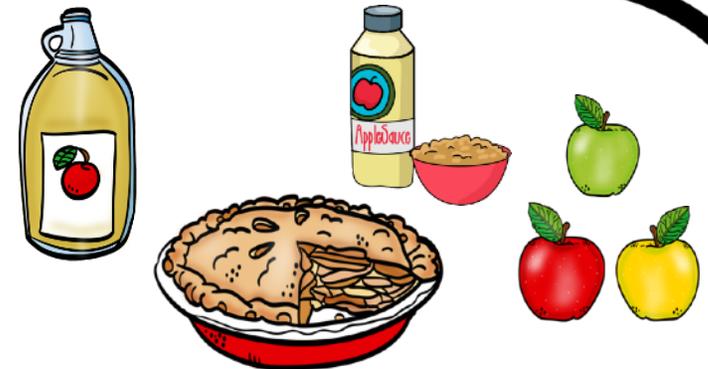

He came back often to check on the orchards he planted and to care for them.

Some stories say that he wore a pot on his head instead of a hat! He rarely wore shoes.

Johnny Appleseed spent 50 years walking back and forth caring for the orchards.

Now there are so many delicious apples for us to eat!
